Season's Greetings!

Another year draws to a close, with a big thank you from all the team here at Nicolas Tye Architects. We look forward to working with you to achieve even more success in 2013!

So what a year it has been, with a run of completed projects and local authority approvals for a series of challenging and sensitive sites, we are very proud of these accomplishments; one of which you'll see below. We have also won the AVDC Design Awards 2012 for Rammamere, Stockgrove which is a great achievement for a highly contemporary dwelling within Greenbelt and Area of Special Landscape Value.

Back in June we held our first family fun day event as apart of the 'Love Architecture Week' here in the grounds of the Nicolas Tye Architects studio. It was a great way to showcase the studio and its rural setting with a great atmosphere!

Hercules Farm. We recently secured planning approval for a new build paragraph 55 house on the outskirts of Claverdon in Warwickshire, working closely with Philips Planning and Price and Myers structural engineers.

We are currently hard at work detailing the project for Tender, which is targeting Code 6 on the Code for Sustainable Homes. Our clients goal is to revitalise Hercules Farm and the surrounding landscape to provide a self sufficient home for their families future.

Our response is derived from the changing natural landscape and creating a balance between divergent uses. The flowing forms of the building bisect a circular and semi-circular courtyard affording the farm and house a direct connection whilst offering a degree of segregation. A semi translucent veil structure of perforated and solid copper panels, bio diverse roofing and building integrated photovoltaics drapes the upper storey. The resulting form is productive surface harvesting solar heat gain, generation of electricity, rainwater harvesting and storage, habitat production, whilst providing a visual screen and softening the forms into the changing landscape.

We are excited to see construction start in 2013.

Winner of AVDC Design Awards 2012. We are delighted to announce that Rammamere, Stockgrove has won the Design Award Plaque for Outstanding Design 2012.

Our proposal situated within a Greenbelt and an Area of Special Landscape Value is designed to maintain the important features of the existing site, becoming a building of high quality design and architecture to form a fresh modern single dwelling that respects the sensitive nature of the area, while presenting a modern but timeless design concept.
