

Alina Voinescu, Assistant

Alina started her architectural path in 2009 when she moved to England to study an undergraduate degree at Coventry University. She began her professional experience during the second year of university at a small practice which focused on residential and ecclesiastical design.

After her graduation, she was offered a position at IDP, where she gained experience in a wide variety of sectors ranging from urban design, residential, commercial and retirement living.

She studied a part time Masters Degree at Birmingham City University whilst continuing her professional experience.

At the moment, Alina is currently undertaking Part III studies at Birmingham City University and is looking to qualify as an Architect in the near future.

Alina joined the Birmingham team in July 2017.